Fund Commentary

Market Review

In the month of November, the MSCI China Index returned -8.28%. Utilities and consumer staples were the top performing sectors, while the information technology and health care sectors lagged during the month.

Fund Performance

The fund performed inline with the index during the month. Stock selection positively impacted performance in the information technology, industrials and health care sectors, while stock selection in the consumer staples, consumer discretionary and utilities sectors detracted from performance.

Portfolio Strategy & Outlook

Policy has turned to selective easing, while keeping a control over inflation and asset prices. The economy is likely to slow further over next several quarters on the back of tightening policy already implemented and slowdown in exports. As inflation moderates, we expect central governments will take this opportunity to further restructure the economy away from investment to consumption driven. Selective easing measures will be made available to SMEs and mitigate the downside risk in the economy. However, any significant expansion in monetary policy is unlikely due to excess credit created during past years. The portfolio continues to overweight stocks with improving business fundamentals, rising investor expectations and attractive relative valuations. We minimize market, sector and industry exposures relative to the index in order to isolate superior stock selection as the primary source of outperformance.
